OAG workshop: Pottery: Developing a 3 dimensional perspective With Ann Randeraad

Born in Peterborough and raised in the Headwaters region, Ann Randeraad has been involved in clay for more than 20 years now but her love of drawing was the core of her art involvement for many years.

Ann works from both her studio in the Alton Mill Arts Centre & and Elan Studios (her home studio). She offers classes in wheel throwing and handbuilding, both in studio and off site. Ann's works can be found in shops, shows and galleries in the Headwaters Region, Waterloo, Kawarthas, South Simcoe and beyond.

Locally, Ann is known as the founder and co-ordinator for Empty Bowls Alton, a fundraising venture where potters donate the bowls, chefs donate soup and all the funds raised go to local foodbanks.

Ann's works include sculpture & wall pieces, both in raku and woodfire finish. Her functional works include everything from mugs, bowls, platters & pitchers right through to salad bowl sets, yunomi sets, celebratory pieces and one of a kind sinks.

During the OAG workshop, Ann will instruct the participants by way of demonstration, discussion and a hands-on session aimed at producing hand-built pottery. Later, the participants' pieces will be bisque fired at her studio. While working in the clay, participants might bring objects to create surface textures.

CrossCurrents Caledon

Arts and Entertainment across Caledon
CrossCurrents Caledon was created by concerned and caring citizens, in April 2015, to fill a need for quality entertainment in an intimate environment. Our goal was to provide an appreciative and attentive audience for the performer, and a unique and rewarding experience for the audience. These events are held every second Friday in the Bolton United Church. Performers have included Nigerian-born singer/songwriter Kunle, Ian, Reid, Canadian folk duo Fraser and Girard, extraordinary soul singers like Dan Mclean Jr and Deidrey Francois, Russian group Outro and reknowned singer/story-teller David Storey. Future events will include everything from bluegrass to classical recitals to magic and comedy and even dance and spoken word. They are compensated via the magic of the tip jar. We owe much of our success to a lot of hard work from our volunteers, who donate their time, energy (and sometimes personal finances) to make these events happen, and who do everything possible to get the word out. We also provide real, home-baked goodies and treats, along with coffee, tea etc.

The back story: Bolton used to have a unique venue called the Archtop Café, which was a combined music store and coffee shop. On Sunday mornings we would gather to meet new people, chat and listen to world music provided by Stephen Slutsky on his accordion. A "scene" evolved, with so many musicians and music people becoming closely acquainted, and eventually the owner and his wife began staging regular Friday and sometimes Saturday evening performances. The attendance quickly began to grow, and the evenings often had an almost magical quality about them. Then, suddenly, it was over - the landlord ejected the owner and his wife, and the place closed. We were all shocked and disappointed, so when Steve (Stephen Slutsky) suggested we all meet and look for a way to continue what had so quickly become both a tradition and a phenomenon, we eagerly gathered for a brunch in the dining room of the Ambassador Hotel, including town councillor Annette Groves. The concept of CrossCurrents Caledon was born, and a venue took shape in the form of an upstairs room at the Bolton United Church.
